Masterson has delivered powerful performances in hit shows like AMC's Better Call Saul, where she played Stef Carvaines, and NBC's Magnum P.I. reboot, as Lt. Josie "Mac"

Masterson's nuanced portrayals and ability to capture the complexity of her characters have earned her critical acclaim and multiple awards, including the Audience Favorite Award at the Connect Film Festival, AUS, and Best Supporting Actress at the Depth of Field International Film Festival. In Bounty, Masterson takes center stage as Tiana Massey, a former CIA officer who launches a fugitive recovery team to capture dangerous criminals who have evaded traditional law enforcement.

"Ammie is an incredible talent and force on screen," said Derryl Williams, executive producer of Bounty. "She brings a perfect balance of strength, vulnerability and humor to every role. We feel very fortunate to have her leading this series."

Bounty is planning to premiere in the Fall of 2024 and is currently negotiating with streaming platforms. The gritty action-thriller is produced by WHEG LLC and created by Derryl and LaSanya Williams.

"I'd been waiting for an opportunity to challenge myself in my work and embody a real and complex character the audience could hopefully relate to." Masterson said. "Tiana was definitely that opportunity!"

Masterson continues to build an impressive resume of work across television, film, and theater.
