

Renowned Cardiologist Harry M. Lever, MD, FACP, FACC, Leading the Charge in Cardiovascular Excellence

Navigating Cardiac Health with Precision and Compassion

New York City, New York Apr 10, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - Dr. Harry M. Lever, MD, FACP, FACC, is a seasoned cardiologist who recently retired from the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, Ohio. His areas of specialization include echocardiography and hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, having previously served as Medical Director of the Hypertrophic Cardiomyopathy Center at Cleveland Clinic.

With over five decades of experience under his belt, Dr. Lever has been instrumental in educating patients and physicians alike on the quality variances that exist between generic and brand name drugs. He emphasizes that generic drugs are not always identical to their brand name counterparts and underscores the lack of rigorous scrutiny that foreign generics undergo compared to drugs in the United States.

His journey towards becoming a leading authority in cardiology began with his graduation from the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine in 1971. Following this, Dr. Lever completed his residency in internal medicine at UPMC Medical Education from 1971 to 1974 and his fellowship in cardiovascular disease at the University of Rochester from 1973 to 1976.

His credentials include being recognized as a Diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine (board certified in internal medicine and cardiovascular disease), a Fellow of the American College of Physicians (FACP), and as a Fellow of the American College of Cardiology (FACC).

Beyond his professional achievements, Dr. Lever is known for his passion for model trains, which serves as a testament to his attention to detail and dedication in all aspects of his life. His commitment to patient safety and advocacy for informed healthcare decisions make him a respected figure in the medical community and a trusted resource for those seeking clarity on medication and heart-related issues.
