

Hard-hitting advertising campaign for new book points the finger of history at Joseph Stalin

Innovative advertising campaign for new thriller Man of Bones uses Stalin's own bloody fingerprints to link the Russian dictator to his monstrous crimes

London, United Kingdom May 15, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - As history's serial killers go, Joseph Stalin put Ted Bundy, Jeffrey Dahmer, and Jack the Ripper to shame. Although estimates vary, most modern historians place Stalin's victims – from the Gulag camps, his Great Terror, and the Holodomor – the brutal famine in which millions of Ukrainians starved to death – in the many millions.

Now, a hard-hitting advertising campaign for the new historical thriller Man of Bones by Ben Creed (Mountain Leopard Press, Headline), places the communist dictator's bloodied fingerprints at the scene of those despicable crimes.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6g23fymfb7I>

Using exact copies of Stalin's own prints from his 1910 Baku arrest record by the Okhrana, the Czar's secret police, the campaign links them to the victims of the Gulag, Great Terror, and the Ukrainian Holodomor.

Specially created by artist Ian Millen, the atmospheric sixty-second book-trailers will appear on social platforms like X, Instagram and TikTok to help publicise the launch of Man of Bones by the Crime Writers' Association Gold Dagger shortlisted author and writer of one of The Times 'Thrillers of the Year,' Ben Creed.

Man of Bones is the third book in the series of critically acclaimed historical thrillers by Creed. Like the first two – City of Ghosts and A Traitor's Heart – the novel is set in Russia in the early 1950s, during the tumultuous years leading up to Stalin's death.

The books tell the story of militia detective Revol Rossel, a former violin student at the prestigious Leningrad Conservatory, whose musical career is cut short when his fingers are severed by the state-security service, the fearsome MGB.

Rossel, a meditative but hard-headed detective, has been compared by The Times and Financial Times to Martin Cruz Smith's Arkady Renko. Bestselling author James Patterson agrees: "This reminded me of Gorky Park, only I liked this tense complex thriller even better," the thriller writer commented.

"Stalin's malign presence pervades all the Revol Rossel thrillers. He is the heart of the darkness inside the Soviet system which took so many innocent lives. So, we wanted to create a different kind of book trailer for Man of Bones, one that clearly links Stalin to his monstrous crimes," said Ben Creed.

Man of Bones is published by Headline's Mountain Leopard Press and is out in hardback and on Amazon Kindle from today. <https://www.amazon.co.uk/Man-Bones-Revol-Rossel-thriller-ebook/dp/B0B9P36KSN>

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6xVBUQc\_12Q

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RdLTSKzBxQE> <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RdLTSKzBxQE>

Media Contact

Ben Creed Books

chrisrickaby1@googlemail.com

07974140923

Source : Man of Bones by Ben Creed

See on IssueWire