

Introducing SlingThing: The Solution for Neck Pain Associated with Shoulder Slings

Spokane, Washington May 6, 2024 (IssueWire.com) - RangeMaster has released The Off-The Neck SlingThing, a product designed to address neck pain commonly experienced by patients using shoulder slings. This solution, aptly named the "Off-The Neck SlingThing Arm Sling Adapter," was created to transform the way patients manage and alleviate discomfort associated with traditional shoulder slings.

Shoulder slings are often prescribed for support and stability for individuals recovering from various upper limb injuries and surgeries, but a common issue for patients is the development of neck pain due to the traditional design of these slings, which often places undue strain on the neck and shoulder area.

Recognizing the need for a more ergonomic and patient-friendly solution, and born from the painful experience of our own employee, SlingThing is an adapter that redistributes the weight of the sling away from the neck, offering comfort and support for patients. The Off-the-Neck Arm Sling Adapter features a unique design that securely attaches to most shoulder slings, effectively transferring the load to the healthy arm, which reduces strain on the neck and shoulder muscles.

Neck pain associated with traditional shoulder slings can be debilitating for patients and hinder their recovery process. With the Off-The-Neck SlingThing Arm Sling Adapter, we aim to provide healthcare professionals with a simple yet effective solution to enhance patient comfort and improve overall outcomes.

Key features of the Off-The-Neck SlingThing Arm Sling Adapter include:

- Ergonomic design: The adapter is shaped to fit comfortably around the arm, ensuring optimal weight distribution and support.
- Adjustable wrap: Tailor the fit to your comfort with the adjustable bicep wrap and tongue that pulls the sling off your neck. The SlingThing fits most arms and fits most arm slings.
- Lightweight and breathable materials: Constructed from high-quality, breathable materials, the adapter is designed for long-term wear without compromising comfort and is machine washable.

The Off-the-Neck SlingThing Arm Sling Adapter is now available for purchase through the Rangemaster website at <https://myrangemaster.com/shop/slingthing-off-the-neck-arm-sling-adapter/>.
