

P-Stubbz801 Unleashes “Call 'Em Out Classic #3” – A Diss Track Shaking Utah’s Rap Scene

Midvale, Utah Dec 25, 2024 (Issuewire.com) - Utah rap artist P-Stubbz801 has dropped his latest diss track, “Call 'Em Out Classic #3,” sending shockwaves through Utah’s music scene. The track is a direct response to local rapper Nsomniac, addressing political clashes, false narratives, and artistic integrity while also taking aim at Jordan, owner of JRC Events, and calling for a new era of underground music.

The feud with Nsomniac stems from a political disagreement, with him expressing frustration over the election of the next U.S. President, Donald Trump . While P-Stubbz801 engaged in a respectful debate and urged Nsomniac to “get over it,” the situation escalated when Nsomniac resorted to disrespect and began spreading false information about P-Stubbz801. Despite his accusations, He failed to even listen to P-Stubbz801’s music, undermining his credibility, Nsomniac could not even name a song he listened to.

“This isn’t just about differences in opinion—it’s about integrity,” You can’t come at someone with false facts, stir misinformation, and then act like you know what they’re about without even listening to their art. That’s not how real respect works.” says P-Stubbz.

“Call 'Em Out Classic #3” also challenges Nsomniac’s credibility surrounding his collaboration with King ISO. P-Stubbz801 exposes that the collab, which Nsomniac modeled it like a sign of earned respect, was actually paid for by a third party.

“It’s pretty hilarious how the dude acts like he made it ,” Respect in the industry has to be earned authentically—not bought or fabricated.” P-Stubbz801 adds.

The diss track also critiques JRC Events, with P-Stubbz801 stating their services are no longer needed in today’s underground music scene.

“We’re in a new era,” P-Stubbz declares. “Artists are taking control of their futures. The underground scene is thriving on independence, creativity, and real connections—not gatekeepers or outdated practices.”
