Frisco, Texas Jan 7, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Dennis Jay Gelbaum, the author of 'Going Home' will be featured on The Authors Show® on Monday, January 13th on Channel 7. Gelbaum's interview (hosted by Don McCauley) will be available for a full 24 hours starting at midnight EST and can be listened to at any time during that 24-hour period from anywhere around the world, no matter what time zone. The interview can be listened to at <http://theauthorsshow.com> The Authors Show® is a professional interview program/podcast where new and seasoned authors in all book genres present their work to readers. In 20+ years, the show has interviewed over 7000 authors.

'Going Home' will captivate an audience with its vivid blend of poetry, photographs, and illustrations. It explores the spectrum of adult disillusionment – emotions - while it celebrates the beauty of family, love, and dreams through a reflective and colorful lens. Gelbaum adds "I tend to wear rose colored glasses. viewing the world with an overly optimistic perspective, essentially seeing only the positive aspects and ignoring potential negatives. It's proven to be a very challenging and mostly unrealistic way of looking at life. But its given me my edge."

The poems are vividly expressive, depicting moments that resonate with anyone who has grappled with the reality of love's impermanence and the dreams that shift and fade. Gelbaum's verses evoke the challenges of navigating relationships, the struggles with personal demons, and the universal quest for meaning amid chaos.

'Going Home' will appeal to adults and young adults who enjoy contemporary poetry and are interested in themes of love, loss, and self-discovery. Gelbaum adds "I'm hoping it appeals to individuals seeking emotional depth in their reading selections as well as those grappling with similar themes in their own lives. We don't all experience emotions exactly the same way so, while we share the same emotions in principle, the feelings of them can differ from person to person.

Thematically, Gelbaum also addresses societal issues - war, addiction, and the pursuit of peace - imploring readers to reflect on these narratives. Poems like "Please Give Peace a Chance" resonate deeply, urging a collective understanding of the futility of violence. In "Losing Touch," the fear of estrangement from a beloved son highlights the poignant complexities of familial bonds, while "My Father, Taking His Breath Away" delves into the sorrow and longing that accompanies loss.

Each poem is paired with uniquely interpretable illustrations and/or photographs, adding layers to the reading experience and prompting the reader to delve deeper into the emotional landscape that Gelbaum paints. Gelbaum adds "The world is emotionally complex, I'm emotionally complex. Writing poetry gives me the opportunity of turning stories into lingering, cathartic experiences."
